Body Of Woman Found In Ditch At Wittenberg

Comb Entire State for Man Who Slew Wealthy Bride on Honeymoon
FARMER DISCOVERS BODY
Grand Rapids Man Alleged to Have Slain His Wife With Hatchet

BULLETIN
Rhinelander—Authorities here announced Monday that they believe the nude body found on the road near Wittenberg early Sunday was that of Elizabeth Blimbo of Chicago.

Their belief was based on advice received from Chicago Saturday which stated that Elizabeth Blimbo, after stealing $2,000 from her father eloped with a stranger late Friday in a motor car with a Michigan license plate and that the pair were seen in Fond du Lac, and headed this way.

Appleton police, with police authorities over the entire northwest, have been asked to help in the search for George P. Cummings who is alleged to have murdered his bride of a week and buried her nude body in a shallow grave along side a road near Wittenberg Sunday morning. Several Appleton people arrived at the grave about the time the body was being exhumed. The entire population of the countryside was gathered around the grave, it was said.

The body was discovered shortly after it was buried by the slayer, but he had left a two or three hour start before search for him was started and his trail was lost. The last seen of him was at Wausau where he purchased gasoline and where it was reported he was heading for the south.

GETS FARMER'S HELP
Early Sunday morning, Emil Buntrock, a farmer living between Elmdale and Wittenberg saw a man step his car in the road and apparently dig a hole in a muddy ditch along the highway. A little later the stranger went to the farmhouse and explained that his car was mired in the mud and asked the farmer to haul him out. Buntrock explained he wanted to finish his milking and take the milk to the factory first and the stranger consented to wait. After he had finished his work, Buntrock dragged the car out of the mud, received his pay and the stranger drove off.

Not long after Buntrock remembered about the stranger digging in the ditch and he went to investigate. Under a mound of rocks and sticks he saw a woman's head protruding out of the ground. Summoning help, he dug out the grave and found the nude body of a woman, wrapped in an army blanket. The woman's clothes were found concealed in a thicket a short distance from the grave.

SUEN AT WITTENBERG
It soon was learned that the stranger and a woman who, said she was his wife, were seen in the free camping ground at Wittenberg Saturday night. He gave his name as George P. Cummings of Grand Rapids, Mich. It was learned Friday night that Cummings was married at Grand Rapids about a week ago to Mrs. E. Rae, said to have been a rather wealthy woman, about 62 years of age. Her marriage to Cummings was reported to have been her fifth matrimonial venture. Cummings, it is said, paid Buntrock from a large roll of bills and it is conjectured that the money was obtained from his wife who is reported to have had about $500 with her.

Cummings was described as about 35 years old, dark complexion, weighing about 150 pounds and 5 feet 10 inches tall. He was driving a Chevrolet touring car in bad condition.

PLANNED HONEYMOON
Cummings and his wife appeared at the Wittenberg camp Saturday night with equipment to remain in the woods for a long time. The woman appeared to be ten or fifteen years older than husband and had told strangers that she had been married only a few days. She said she expected to spend a long honeymoon in the northern woods.

According to advice received here, the slayer's description to all parts of the northwest and every road north of Milwaukee is being watched. It is believed that with the thorough de-

TWELVE KILLED IN DAKOTA TEMPEST

ARMED GUARDS WATCH BODIES OF DEAD TARS

Three Theories Offered for Blast on Battleship Which Killed 48

San Pedro, Calif. — Three possible causes of the premature explosion which killed 48 men in a turret aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi last Thursday were slated for closer scrutiny at Monday's session of the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster.

One possible explanation of the deadly blast was that the air pressure operating the breech mechanism of the 14-inch rifle was abnormally, and therefore perilously low—too low to eject from the barrel every glowing particle of powder left there by the last charge fired.

Another theory supported by testimony was that one of the linen index tags attached to powder bags was left on a bag of explosives when it was rammed into the breech and that a smoldering portion of this tag clung to the gun bore and ignited the new charge before the breech could be cleared.

The third explanation suggested in the evidence so far presented was that there was something radically wrong with the gun that turned on its crew. Observers testified that the big rifle, in previous firings Thursday, had been from five to ten seconds late.

Eighteen witnesses were to be called Monday, eight from the Mississippi and ten from the New Mexico. As the naval court prepared to convene aboard the Mississippi sailors and police stood guard around the morgue housing the bodies of the 48 disaster victims. The guard was placed early Sunday, after a raid by sailors on radical meeting Saturday had resulted in alleged threats of violence. The sailors and police, armed with police rifles, were called off for a few hours Sunday, but at dusk, 12 blue jackets and 4 civilians were back at their posts and at midnight they were relieved by another armed detail.

Damage Done by Extensive Storms Estimated at Nearly $1,000,000

SCORES SUFFER INJURIES
Additional Details Are Expected When Wires Are Repaired After Gales

Mitchell S. D.—With wire communication gradually being restored, additional details were expected Monday from sections of South Dakota, swept by tornadoes and wind, hail and rain storms Saturday night with a death toll of at least 12 killed, scores injured and property damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Wessington Springs, S. D.—Extensive property damage was done in Wessington Springs and over the country side for a radius of 20 miles from here by a tornado that struck this city at 7 p. m., Saturday. Damage was estimated at from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Huron, S. D.—Wessington Springs, 35 miles southwest of here, sustained damage which will run into thousands of dollars, with practically every business district, telephone exchange and railroad station wrecked Monday morning.

Every brick building in the business section was flattened and some buildings crushed when two tornadoes met in the center of the town late Saturday. As far as can be learned no lives were lost, although there were many minor casualties.

The twisters spread through the residence district, said the report, and there was scarcely a house in town which was not damaged.

Dawes Nomination Is Greeted With Mixed Feelings In Chicago

Businessmen Are Satisfied, Politicians Are Doubtful and Laborites Object to Stand on Unions.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924 by the Post Pub. Co.
Chicago — Here in the home of Charles Gates Dawes, Republican nominee for the vice presidency, one finds a mixed reaction to his selection as the running mate for President Calvin Coolidge. Businessmen are thrilled and satisfied. Politicians are somewhat skeptical for they are not sure that a multi-millionaire is a good choice in these days of La Follette and Brookhart, this era of conflict between the agricultural west and the banking east.

Mr. Dawes probably is richer than any man ever nominated to be either president or vice president with the possible exception of Garret Hobart. While Mr. Dawes is worth several millions, he is not reputed to be as wealthy as the secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon. But there already is an indication among the radical leaders here that they will stress not on the method by which he acquired his fortune for there is no disposition here to imply anything irregular in that respect, but upon the viewpoint which he holds toward labor as a consequence of his banking and business background.

HEADS CENTRAL TRUST CO.
Mr. Dawes as head of the Central Trust Co. of Illinois, is in close touch with the New York banking community and it was his bank which led all the rest in this region in participating in the recent loan floated by J. P. Morgan & Co. for the French government. He has been outspoken in his views about the need of financial cooperation with Europe. He is one of the largest stockholders also in the Pure Oil Co. In fact together with his brothers he owns that mammoth concern.

WON'T TRIM HIS VIEWS
Although Mr. Dawes' antipathy toward labor is well known, it is unlikely that he will trim his views to meet political exigencies. He is not that kind. He has paid his respect to the waverings of politicians in such strong language that his whole make-up would rebel at the suggestion of back tracking. He did not seek the vice presidency. The job sought him. He is proud of the organization which he created known as "The Minute Men of the Constitution." It is in line with his ideas about the "open" shop which he regards as a fundamental issue in American industry. He thinks non-union men should be permitted to work alongside of union men without restraint and that employers should not have to deal with unions if they do not want to do so. While the "open" shop issue is one that many business men would welcome as a good one on which to make a test once and for all, the political leaders are not anxious to have a controversy on labor when President Coolidge has been able to a large extent to make his labor opponents forget his vigorous stand toward the American Federation of Labor in the famous Boston police strike.

POLICE SEEK MOTIVES FOR TWO SLAYINGS

Guhmen Who Killed Boxer in Cabaret Are Caught After Short Chase

By Associated Press
New York.—The police are continuing their efforts to determine the motive which caused two men to shoot to death Bill Brennan, heavyweight pugilist, in his Washington Heights cabaret, the club Tia Juana, early Sunday. James Cullen, a state trooper and friend of Brennan died early Monday from wounds he received in fighting the bandits after they had shot his friend.

The two men charged with the crime are Frank Rassi and James Hughes. Both, according to the police, have criminal records. Rassi is a cab driver, and Hughes is a pugilist, known in the ring as Terry O'Neill.

No attempt was made at robbery. The killing occurred at 4:30 Sunday morning when the cabaret was deserted, save for the waiters. Brennan, his sister, and Cullen. One of the men, whom Miss Sherman, an enterprising lady, identified as Hughes, entered and asked Brennan to stop in the hall for a moment.

Brennan complied, and almost immediately two shots were heard. Miss Sherman and Cullen rushed into the hallway on the second floor and found Brennan dying on the floor. One of the shots lodged in Cullen's neck and the other narrowly missed Miss Sherman. Brennan died while being carried to an ambulance.

The assassins gained their way to Broadway by smashing a glass door at the bottom of the stairway and, after knocking senseless a passing police lieutenant, held up an automobile, forcing the driver to dash up Broadway at top speed. They were captured by two policemen who pursued them in a commandeered taxicab.

LAWRENCE HOLDS ANNUAL CLASS DAY

Class day exercises and the reunion of the Athens Literary society were features of the business management program for Monday at Lawrence college. The annual convocation commencement ritual will take place at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Monday evening.

Tuesday is alumni day, with the Phi Beta Kappa business meeting and oration in the morning, the luncheon at Brokaw hall at noon, the alumni business meeting and a program of readings in the afternoon, and the annual alumni banquet on Tuesday evening at Russell Sage dormitory.

The giving of degrees will take place on Wednesday morning.

CHECKING SYSTEM IS AIM FOR FAIRS

Madison.—A checking system to prevent unfair distribution of more than $200,000 annually in state aid to county and district fairs was being worked out here Monday at a state conference between directors of the Wisconsin Association of Fairs and Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman. An agreement for closer inspection of distribution work will be arrived at, it was said. Those attending the conference included: A. W. Frohn, Waupun, president Wisconsin Association of Fairs; F. C. Berchardt, Manitowish; James MacLean, Beaver Dam; L. E. Ross, Superior; A. L. Putnam, Chippewa Falls; Taylor Brown, Oshkosh, and A. C. Taylor, Wausau.

CIGARET IS BLAMED FOR FIRE IN AWNING

Fire attributed to the carelessness of some passing automobilist in lighting away a burning cigaret stub started on the awning of one of the windows of Marston Brothers fuel yards on Onida at 5 o'clock Sunday evening. The only damage done, however, was the burning of the awning itself.

3 IN HOSPITAL AFTER AUTOS CRASH IN RAIN

Frank Verbrick's Car Is Hit By Machine Driven By Roy Oakley at Sherwood

Three people are in St. Elizabeth hospital, one of them in serious condition, as the result of an automobile collision in the rain at Sherwood at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mrs. Roy Oakley of Sherwood has a fractured jaw and cuts and bruises so serious that her condition is regarded by the attending physician as critical. Her husband, who was driving their Ford touring car, has a compound fracture of the wrist and numerous contusions on the body. Rudolph Jacobson of Kaukauna, riding in an Oakland sedan, owned and driven by Frank Verbrick of Appleton, was thrown through the windshield and has a deep gash on the leg and a badly cut face and head. These three were conveyed to the hospital in an ambulance after they had been bandaged by a Sherwood doctor.

Frank Verbrick had his face and hands cut but was able to be about Monday. His brother Thomas, the third occupant of the sedan, was unhurt. Two children in the Oakley car also escaped injury.

Verbrick says he was driving to Appleton from Stockbridge and when descending the hill south of Sherwood on highway 114 saw Oakley approaching well on the left of the road. He believes the rain descending at that time prevented Oakley from seeing his car in time to give room to pass. Verbrick turned to the right intending to take to the ditch but

LAKE TUGS LOCATE WRECK OF VESSEL SUNK LAST FALL

Preparations in Progress to Raise Hull and Seek Missing Bodies

By Associated Press
Kenosha. — Preparations are being made to raise the steel tug Forelle, of Milwaukee, which was believed to have been located Sunday on the bottom of Lake Michigan under 220 feet of water, 12 miles southeast of Kenosha. The Forelle disappeared during a storm which swept the lake last September while she was enroute from Benton Harbor, Mich., loaded with 5,000 baskets of grapes for the Milwaukee market. None of her crew of five men were ever heard from.

The first indication that the boat sank near Kenosha came when the Milwaukee coast guard cutter picked up a port light shield a mile off the shore here, four days after the boat had failed to make port.

Last February, Captain Henry Postman, of the fish tug Winnie, snagged his lines while fishing. One line showed signs of having been cut by steel, and a lead sinker showed rust stains when the net was at last brought to the surface. A buoy was sunk at the spot.

Sunday, with the weather calm, the Winnie and the tug Helen B. both of Milwaukee put out to sound. A line was drawn in a wide circle around the spot where the boat was believed to be lying, and when it snagged, was pulled by both boats. A patch of oil 300 feet across, rose to the surface of the water immediately.

The Forelle had been equipped with oil burning engines a few months before she was lost, and at the time she sank, was known to have been loaded with fuel. This led to the belief that the hull had been moved enough to disturb the oil.

None of the bodies have ever floated ashore, and it is believed that they would be found, when the boat is raised. The hull is valued at $25,000, and it is stated, that unless she was sunk by being rammed during the storm, very little damage will have been done by the 10 months' submersion.

PROGRESSIVES OPEN NATIONAL CONCLAVE IN ST. PAUL TUESDAY

Delegates Will Find Activities Well Charted, Is Prediction

By Associated Press
St. Paul.—Delegates to the national Farmer-Labor-Progressive convention opening here Tuesday will find their activities well charted by the arrangements committee, which completed its work Monday.

Every point, from the platform to action on a third party presidential candidate has been worked out by the committee, and unless there is objection from the delegates, the convention is expected to move with clock work regularity.

The committee plan calls for postponement of action on third party presidential plans until after the Progressive conference in Cleveland, July 4, and empowers the executive committee to act then as it sees fit. The committee was instructed for Senator E. M. La Follette.

Platform planks have been shaped on the principal subjects, such as government ownership of natural resources—mines, oil, forestry and owners of railroads, condemnation of the federal reserve bank system and full protection of constitutional rights.

The convention will be called to order at the St. Paul auditorium by William Mahoney of St. Paul temporary chairman, who will outline the purposes of the convention. A credential committee will be announced, and while it is performing its duties, several speakers will be heard.

COMMITTEE WILL REPORT ON "FUN ON FARM" CIRCUS

The committee which went to Ramoth a week ago to inspect John M. Kelsey's "Fun on the Farm" circus which will exhibit in Appleton July 11 will report at a meeting of representatives of farm organizations in the courthouse Monday evening. Further arrangements for the parade and circus will be discussed at the meeting.

GRANGERS LEARN HOW LAND BANKS CAN LOAN MONEY

Enormous Crowd Attends Annual Picnic at South Greenville Grange

BY W. F. WINSEY

The thirtieth annual picnic of the South Greenville Grange held on Saturday in Dase's grove, near Greenville, was pronounced by George Schaefer, master of the grange, as the best in the history of local grange picnics. Approximately 1,000 people were served at the cafeteria dinner by women of the grange and enjoyed the program presented by the children of the Juvenile grange, the speeches delivered by George Schaefer, Herman Ihde and E. E. Twing, assistant secretary of the Federal Land Bank, St. Paul, and the music furnished by Aerial orchestra, Neenah.

Children of the Juvenile grange assumed the entire responsibility for the musical program. The program was planned and the children were drilled by Mrs. John Greiner, assisted by Georgianna Schaefer, Ruth Schaefer and Wilma Menning. Mrs. Alfred Anderson, lecturer of the grange, exercised general supervision over the entire program and presided at the reception.

At 11 o'clock members of both granges assembled at the grange hall and marched to the picnic grounds. The morning part of the literary program was opened by a short introductory address by George Schaefer, who introduced Mrs. Anderson, program chairman. Mrs. Anderson announced the program as follows:

Music by the band; recitation, Jeanette Wieser; song, Donald Menning; handkerchief drill; song, Mae Schroeder; recitation, Herbert Rinders; whistling duet, James and John Schroeder; music by the band; dinner; music by the band; "The Farmer Boy—Chorus; monologue, Ruth Schaefer; song, Marion Knutson; juvenile drill, Marie Schultz; Harriet Milgert, Milna Menning; dance, four little girls; monologue, Helen Menning; music, band; flag drill; song, Jeanette Luebben; recitation, Mae Schroeder; music, band; scarf drill, recitation, Marcella Buesing; song, Janet Menning; folk dance, recitation, Lorraine Erickson; song, Imogene Schaefer; song, Hazel Schaefer; music, band; Tom Thumb Wedding; chorus, Jolly Blacksmiths.

Tom Thumb's wedding in which the principals and best men and women were five year olds was the most popular number of the program.

After the children's program, George Schaefer introduced Mr. Thwing as the principal speaker of the day. He asserted that Wisconsin in productiveness based upon diversified farming as the most reliable and renowned state of the union.

The speaker declared our fathers and we had better opportunities than are possible for this and future generations of children. The government lavishly gave our fathers land and other natural resources that are either tied up or exhausted now. Golden expectations were realized either directly or indirectly from this generosity. As a result of these gifts and opportunities, a high grade of individual management of business was developed.

Thus far in all cases our government has proven adequate and satisfactory to the people. But on account of this individualism in business, it is now on trial instead of continuing to work as individuals, farmers must join hands if they would succeed, not only in production but also the processes of distribution.

Farmers working as individuals are not now able to finance their own operations on the necessary long-time loans as the business man does on the short-time loans. To help the farmer out of his difficulty, twelve federal land banks have been established by the government. The connecting link between these banks and the farmer is the local farm-loan association made up of farmers who are customers of a federal land bank. The president of the local farm-loan association, connected with the Federal Land Bank, St. Paul, is George Schaefer, the secretary and treasurer, W. J. Conrad and the association has already thirty members.

The farmer who wishes to make a loan may write to St. Paul Federal Land Bank. If he does this, his request if he happens to live in Outagamie county will be referred to the local farm loan association. On receipt of such information, the local association will send three appraisers to visit the farm of the applicant and to make a report on the values. If the report of these appraisers is favorable, the federal bank will send on its own expert appraiser to make an independent investigation and to issue the same kind of a report. If the reports coincide, the applicant may borrow money from the federal bank to the extent of 50 per cent of the appraised value of his land and 20 per cent of the value of his buildings. If the loan is made, it is made on long time, the securities are held by the federal bank, and for every $5,000 loan, the federal bank issues $50 worth of stock for the local association.

Concerning Dentistry

No profession offers greater opportunities for a successful career than dentistry. It is still possible for high school graduates to enter immediately upon the four year course. Marquette's new dental building, completely equipped, plus her advantageous location in Milwaukee, affords an exceptional advantage for the study of dental science.

Marquette University comprises nine colleges offering courses in liberal arts, education, engineering (cooperative system), medicine, pre-medicine, dentistry, dental hygiene, nursing, business administration, law, pre-law, journalism, music and dramatic art.

PARENTS SEEK SON LOST FROM HOME

While Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Perl of the town of Wilkes were in Appleton two weeks ago, their 17-year-old son, Joseph, left home and has not been heard from by his parents since that time. Mrs. Perl is heart broken at the sudden disappearance of the boy and is making every effort to find out where the lad went.

Before leaving, the son wrote a note telling his parents that by the time they returned he would have left this part of the country. Because the boy had wanted to go to an automobile school in Chicago during the winter, the parents thought that he might have gone to Chicago. The father went to Chicago hoping to find the boy registered at the school but he had not been there. Mr. and Mrs. Perl have said that they do not intend to make the boy return home against his will but they would be more at ease if they knew where he went.

Council Spent Over Half Of City's Funds In First Five Months

Only $235,000 of $540,000 Left and Seven Months to Go—Fear Deficit Unless Expenses Are Cut.

The city council will have to tighten its purse strings considerably during the second half of the year in order to keep within the funds available for administration of city affairs, for that governing body has come through the first five months of the year with a balance of only about 40 per cent of the original amount anticipated for administration purposes, and the last seven months' activities usually cause the greatest drain on the city treasury.

A comparison of the May financial report of E. L. Williams, city clerk, with the "budget" adopted by the council previous to tax collection time shows that a balance of only $235,000 remained in the general fund on May 31, as compared with the $540,000 estimated receipts for general city purposes.

$431,629 TAX WARRANT
The receipts include a tax warrant of $431,629.33, an income tax of approximately $50,000, a tax from public utilities of approximately $22,000 and miscellaneous receipts through interest on daily bank balances, interest on the city's investment in the waterworks, revenue from licenses, permits and other departmental earnings.

Expenditures during the month of May alone totaled $98,730.48. At the same time the financial report just issued shows outstanding orders in the sum of $95,653.45. Of the former amount, $42,000 were spent for bridge and junior high school construction. There still remains in the bridge fund a total of $96,539.51, and in the junior high school fund there was $358,003.44.

ONE ACCOUNT OVERDRAWN
A perusal of the financial report reveals several interesting details, among them the significant fact that the amount estimated for opening of streets has been materially overdrawn, and that several others are dangerously near the breaking point.

The item of attorney's salary and expenses, judgments and opening of streets, as estimated last November, was jotted down as $12,000, but the expenditures for opening of streets alone has exceeded that amount. Included in cost of extending and widening the alley in block 28, Second ward, the council appropriated $7,000 for purchase of a strip from E. A. Whelan, and $6,500 for another from Lawrence Lutz. The latter city order was recalled, however, and in place of it, $4,000 was appropriated for a smaller strip than was originally desired. Expenditures in May for opening of streets totaled $11,000, while the total amount spent for that purpose, this year is $20,954.50.

With the program of water main installation just begun, the city has spent $36,428.31 of the $44,000 allowed for that purpose, and the greater part of the construction season is still ahead.

The council set aside $25,000 for street cleaning, but $20,124.07 has already been spent. Last month's expenditures amounted to $2,879.29. At the same rate the street cleaning program will require about $15,000 more before the end of the season for sweeping of the streets, and possibly additional money for snow removal. About $7,500 was estimated for parks, and $12,119.70 has been spent thus far. But of this amount $5,000 was turned over to the newly created park commission for disposal, and a like amount was spent for the purchase of the Fourth ward park.

For street equipment there was set aside $5,000, but $4,213.87 has already been spent, with a new automobile truck still to be paid for. The purchase of a machine operated street sweeper, estimated at from $7,000 to $12,000, also is contemplated by some members of the council.

For tax rebates approximately $2,000 was estimated and $6,011.53 has been spent since Jan. 1.

For city hall expenses $7,000 was allowed, and $2,375.14 has been spent with approximately $4,000 worth of coal to purchase and extensive improvements in the city hall, such as redecorating, new linoleums, etc., to pay for.

MAY REQUIRE LOANS
It will be surprising if the city can limp through on its impaired finances.

CROPS LOOK GOOD AFTER FEW DAYS OF WARMTH

The warm weather of the last few days has been of great benefit to the grain crops. Small grain that was held back by the long period of rains and cold weather is now growing rapidly. Most of the corn is already in the ground, but corn for silage still is being planted. Indications are that there will be a fairly large acreage of potatoes this year, which is also true of peas and sugar beets.

In the table given above the $12,000 estimate for the attorney's department includes expenses for judgments and opening of streets. Items of the estimated budget not given above are swimming pool, $1,000; street lighting, $8,000; Culvert repair, $200; walk improvement, $3,000; Lawest fill, $6,000; Cherry-st fill, $500; possible Lawest pavement, $8,000.

CHARGE CHILDREN ARE SLAYING BIRDS WITH AIR RIFLES

Sportsman Protests Indiscriminate Killing of Songsters

A protest against the wholesale slaughter of birds is voiced by a number of Appleton bird lovers who have seen hundreds of birds killed by cats or by boys with air rifles this spring. "Parents who allow their children to shoot at song birds are committing a crime," was the opinion of an Appleton huntsman who, although he has killed much game, would not think of taking any wild animal. "For days I had been watching with interest a mother robin bringing up her family. She had just taught the little ones to fly when a group of boys came along and fired away at the birds and killed every one of the brood. There are those who think robins a pest, but I believe that even sparrows deserve some protection. "Another great enemy of birds is the tramp cat. An ordinary house cat that is well fed will not go after birds; it is the cat that is left to starve and gather its own food that preys upon them. Often when I am hunting in the woods I come across dozens of tramp cats, and I make a practice of killing the cats, rather than having them kill off the birds who have a right to the freedom of the forests. I have killed as many as 12 and 15 cats in one day.

"I will admit that I am no great lover of cats anyway. If I had my way about it, I would license cats, rather than dogs, for they roam around more and do more damage than dogs. Personally I do not believe that licensing dogs keeps the streets clear of mongrels. It would, in my opinion, be a much better plan to order them kept in their own yards. I know of one man who keeps two dogs of good breed put up in fences with plenty of opportunity for exercise. This restriction would produce a better breed of dogs instead of filling the streets with mongrels and curs."

An Easy Change to Make

One of the chief features of many of the 1925 models in automobiles will be an addition which you can make on your car now — long before the new models are on the market.

Equipping with Full Balloon tires is the feature,—adopted because of the convincing proof that balloons have given on their durability, riding qualities and power of cutting down wear on a car.

It is not necessary to wait for the new models before you can enjoy this change-over. Your car can be put into the 1925 class already this season. Firestone is making a triple offer which places this privilege within reach of every car owner.

1. Spoke wheels Free with Balloons.
2. Ten days free trial.
3. Old tires in exchange.

Beside these, the change-over is taken care of by competent mechanics.

To make an offer of this kind means that the tires backs of it must stand the test. Firestone Full Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords have proved dependable beyond a doubt.

What day will be most convenient for a change-over on your car?

MILLIONS OF MOTOR-CAMPERS

The business of motor-camping has grown to enormous proportions in the United States. It is stated that no less than 10,000,000 Americans with 2,500,000 cars were engaged in it last year or during some part of last year. Seven million of these holiday-makers visited the twenty national parks. Florida and California are the chief objectives during the winter months, while New England, the Great Lakes and northern regions further west attract during the summer months. Portland, Oregon, entertained 76,980 guests in its city motor camp last year. Tampa, Fla., calculated that motor tourists spent $2,000,000 there, and even Aberdeen, S. C., figures that its merchants attending to motercampers' wants took in about $175,000 last summer. Thus motor-camping not only brings pleasure and health to the tourists themselves but profit to the towns where they stop.

This accounts for the cordial reception given motor tourists and the comfortable, sanitary and attractive camps provided for them, where they can find good water, kindling wood, milk, bread and eggs on sale. Such camps have long been known along the main routes of travel in the South and West. More recently they have been coming into existence in the east, many having been established of late in New England, New York mountain sections, and other sections. Everywhere the "business" grows, there now being provided even "literature" to tell the tourists where to go and how to make the best of his opportunity. The motor tourist needs a roll of bills as well as a car, a tent, rations and cooking utensils, but he goes further, sees more, is more invigorated physically, and gets more "fun" for his money than he could in any other way.

INDIAN-AMERICANS

Shall we now have an "Indian-American" vote mobilized behind a candidate pledged to the interests of the aborigines, after the fashion so long witnessed in the case of other hyphenated groups, or will the Indians, after long disillusioning experience, be too skeptical of results to take advantage of their opportunity? The question is suggested by the announcement that the president has signed the bill conferring citizenship upon all Indians born within the United States, which is an event because heretofore only certain classes and individuals have enjoyed this statute. Only in the 148th year of the independent existence of the United States has congress seen fit to give the descendants of the original Americans the same legal status that for generations has been conferred on any European immigrant desiring it after five years of residence.

In this grant of citizenship it is expressly provided that the Indians shall not thereby be deprived of any right in tribal or other property. Nor is it the federal government relieved of its obligation to those residing under its care on reservations. Though there is seeming inconsistency in this, it may be necessary as a means of protection, for there are still white men who look upon the Indian as one to be cheated, and if possible dispossessed of any land he may hold. It remains to be seen how satisfactory will be the results of this tardy act of justice to a race that has not only been robbed of a continent, but hedged in and limited in its freedom both of social custom and religious worship.

CONGRESS AND PROSPERITY

At no time since the war's chaos has congress displayed special ability in dealing with rectifying problems, and just now, in advance of the forthcoming election, it shows less judgment than it did even during the economic recession, when, panic-stricken, senators and representatives knocked their knees together, shivered and capered to every murmur from the voters. Members of congress are politically keen and generally interpret popular sentiment correctly, but during the past few years their vision has been blurred and their judgment dulled.

Signs of a great commercial transition have been apparent for some six months or more, during which certain imports have been large, and with the industrial rejuvenation of Europe international trade rivalry will become more vigorous and widespread.

Costs of manufacture will be lower in Europe at the beginning of the business revival than they are here, and the means of our holding our own lies in our ability to compete in prices. In short, our costs necessarily will have to decline. Reciprocal tariff maneuvering will benefit us some, but relatively little.

The bills which have been introduced in the senate and house recently do not justify confidence that congress is capable of mastering economic problems. On the contrary, they leave the idea that congress cannot overcome its habitual weakness of administering legislation for strictly political purposes.

Why we believe that congress has lost its cleverness in political diplomacy is the fact, which every person of experience is familiar with, that it is foolish politics to enact laws and develop plans which are sure to fail. It would be much shrewder politics to recognize the basic principles of industry and agriculture and solve the problems instead of salve the symptoms. Congress should rise to the occasion, which offers a wonderful opportunity for constructive legislative enterprise.

RADIO AS A NECESSITY

Like the electric light, gas, the telephone, the phonograph, the piano, the automobile and the motion picture, the radio is becoming a necessity in thousands, possibly millions of homes. Manufacturers report that sales have kept up well. The demand for receiving sets is so vigorous that they are sold on the installment plan, the same as phonographs.

It is remarkable how soon a convenience is found to be a necessity. Any one could get along without a radio or anything which gives only amusement. But the manner of living and spending is such that most of us must have everything novel and every convenience for comfort and entertainment.

There is a prosperous lawyer in a middle-sized Western city who has a fairly large farm in the suburbs. He works it not only to gain pleasure from agricultural operations, but also, he says, for the pleasure of donning coarse clothes and working in the dirt.

"It is not what we need," says this lawyer, "that bothers us, but what we don't need. I never think of earning money for a living; that income seems to be sure. It is the money which we apply to things which we could dispense that causes us trouble. It is the things themselves that we don't need that worry us."

There is much truth in this philosophy. If we bought only what we needed we should live not only simply but in peace of mind. But there is difference of opinion as to what are necessities. With most persons convenience is something that is needed. The times are not simple. Tastes are not simple. These are times of luxury. We have more and greater necessities than our fathers and mothers.

These are the days you miss a man for a couple of weeks, then you see him back home sunburned and broke.

Near Brussels, a small town had 23 golden weddings on the same day. Starting married is a quiet old custom.

In South Africa they have discovered a new blue baboon. After looking at his picture you can readily see why he is blue.

You can't keep a good man down or a good-for-nothing man up.

CONSERVATION OF BABY DOPE

A grandmother wrote me recently that of the three children she had raised none had ever tasted castor oil until the baby of one of the daughters was a week old, and then some doctor up and prescribed a beaker of it for the young mother. This rare grandmother said that she had used rhubarb in place of castor oil. The aromatic syrup of rhubarb is a perfect substitute for castor oil in any circumstances.

But, folks, have a heart. There is seldom good reason for starting the baby on the medicine habit. It is a deplorable mistake to assume that a baby just naturally had to have colic or indigestion or costiveness or medicine. Once in a hundred cases it might be unfair to deprive an infant of medicine for the relief of colic or an overload of food or costiveness, but as a general rule, the baby's need for any such medicines or the parents' notion that he needs such medicines may be ascribed to improper feeding or improper care, and it is manifestly unfair to the helpless baby, not to mention the harm done, to inflict upon him medicines or other treatment for such mistakes of the parents or others responsible for the baby's care.

As a health maxim I should formulate this rule for those who have babies at their mercy:

Never give a baby the first dose of medicine unless by the doctor's order.

The three conditions I mentioned—colic, indigestion and costiveness—are the usual excuses for starting babies on the medicine habit, and the greater the ignorance or neglect of parents and others having the care of babies, in regard to the feeding and care of babies, the more frequently are these excuses advanced. This comes doubly hard on the baby—he must suffer not only the improper feeding and lack of care or improper care, but also the pernicious effects of the nostrums or dope inflicted upon him in the vain endeavor to remedy these ill effects.

I shall try to present in a series of articles the important points which as it seems to me, are least understood by parents and others with babies in their care, and endeavor to show the influence of improper feeding and improper care upon the occurrence of colic, indigestion and costiveness, particularly costiveness or constipation, for that is the excuse for most of the harmful dosing.

First it should be more clearly understood that a food which agrees perfectly with the baby is not necessarily the right food for the baby, for there are many food formulas, both proprietary and home-made which seem to "agree" perfectly but which are nevertheless entirely inadequate for the proper nourishment of the baby. This notion that if the mother can only find a food which the baby will take readily and seem to digest without difficulty, all is well, leads to grave consequences in many cases, the least of which is costiveness or constipation. It often happens that for a while at least the food or formula which the baby should have doesn't seem to "agree" on that ground, be it sufficient or not, "tries" some other food—to the detriment of the baby's welfare.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Buffalo Versus Phoenix

Has a convalescent from pneumonia as good a chance for complete recovery in Buffalo, N. Y., as he would have in Phoenix, Ariz.? Isn't a dry climate better if there is danger of tuberculosis after a severe case of pneumonia? Is there a particular danger of tuberculosis after severe pneumonia? (B. F. A.)

Chlorin Gas

I read recently where the chemistry department was trying out chlorin gas fumes to cure respiratory infections. I have had bronchitis since last July and am greatly interested. . . . (D. W.)

Answer.—The experiments are not yet finished. In any case it is only the acute conditions that are so treated. Chlorin is far too dangerous a poison to become a practicable remedy. I fear.

Fish Pole Grows To Full Length In One Summer

(A. E. Patterson, in St. Nickolas.)

Did you ever stop to wonder how your fish-pole grew, or how long it took to push itself above the ground and out to its slender length?

I never did, until I went to live in California, and then, in my back yard, I one day noticed this very process.

For there was a young bamboo growing apace in its regular manner. In a single spring it shot up from the ground in a foot-high tangle of loganberry bushes to a height of 15 feet or more. It kept on growing, a clean pole. At one time it grew at the rate of a foot a week.

For the stems of a bamboo have a way of coming to their full height unbranched, and only after they have reached it do these fish-pole plants throw out horizontal branches—slender shoots providing an abundant foliage in the upper part of the tree and capable of making a dense thicket.

On each side of this young fish-pole back of our house were full-grown ones all leaved out, 12 and 15 and 18 feet high. These were cut and used for fishing and for stereoscopic pointers.

In northern California, the bamboo does not grow so rapidly as in the southern part of the state, around Los Angeles. There, I have noticed, it quickly runs up to 15 and even 20 feet in height. And the nearer the tropics one gets, the bigger and heavier the growth may become.

For all bamboos are either tropical or sub-tropical, the 200 species of them. They belong to the grass family, and some grow to be from 70 to 100 feet high. They are found in both the eastern and the western hemispheres, and at all latitudes, from sea-level to a height in the Andes, of 15,000 feet above the sea.

California boys find bamboo sticks ideal as spreaders on their wireless antennae, and I too have found them excellent for this purpose. They are both light and strong, and easy to bore for insulators.

In other countries this important plant is used in the making of water-vessels, conduit-pipes and bridges.

(Frederick A. Delano, in National Municipal Review.)

City planning, especially in large cities, sometimes involves tremendous expenditures. It may be described as a big job of replanning and reconstruction. It means correcting past errors, changing things to meet new and unexpected conditions.

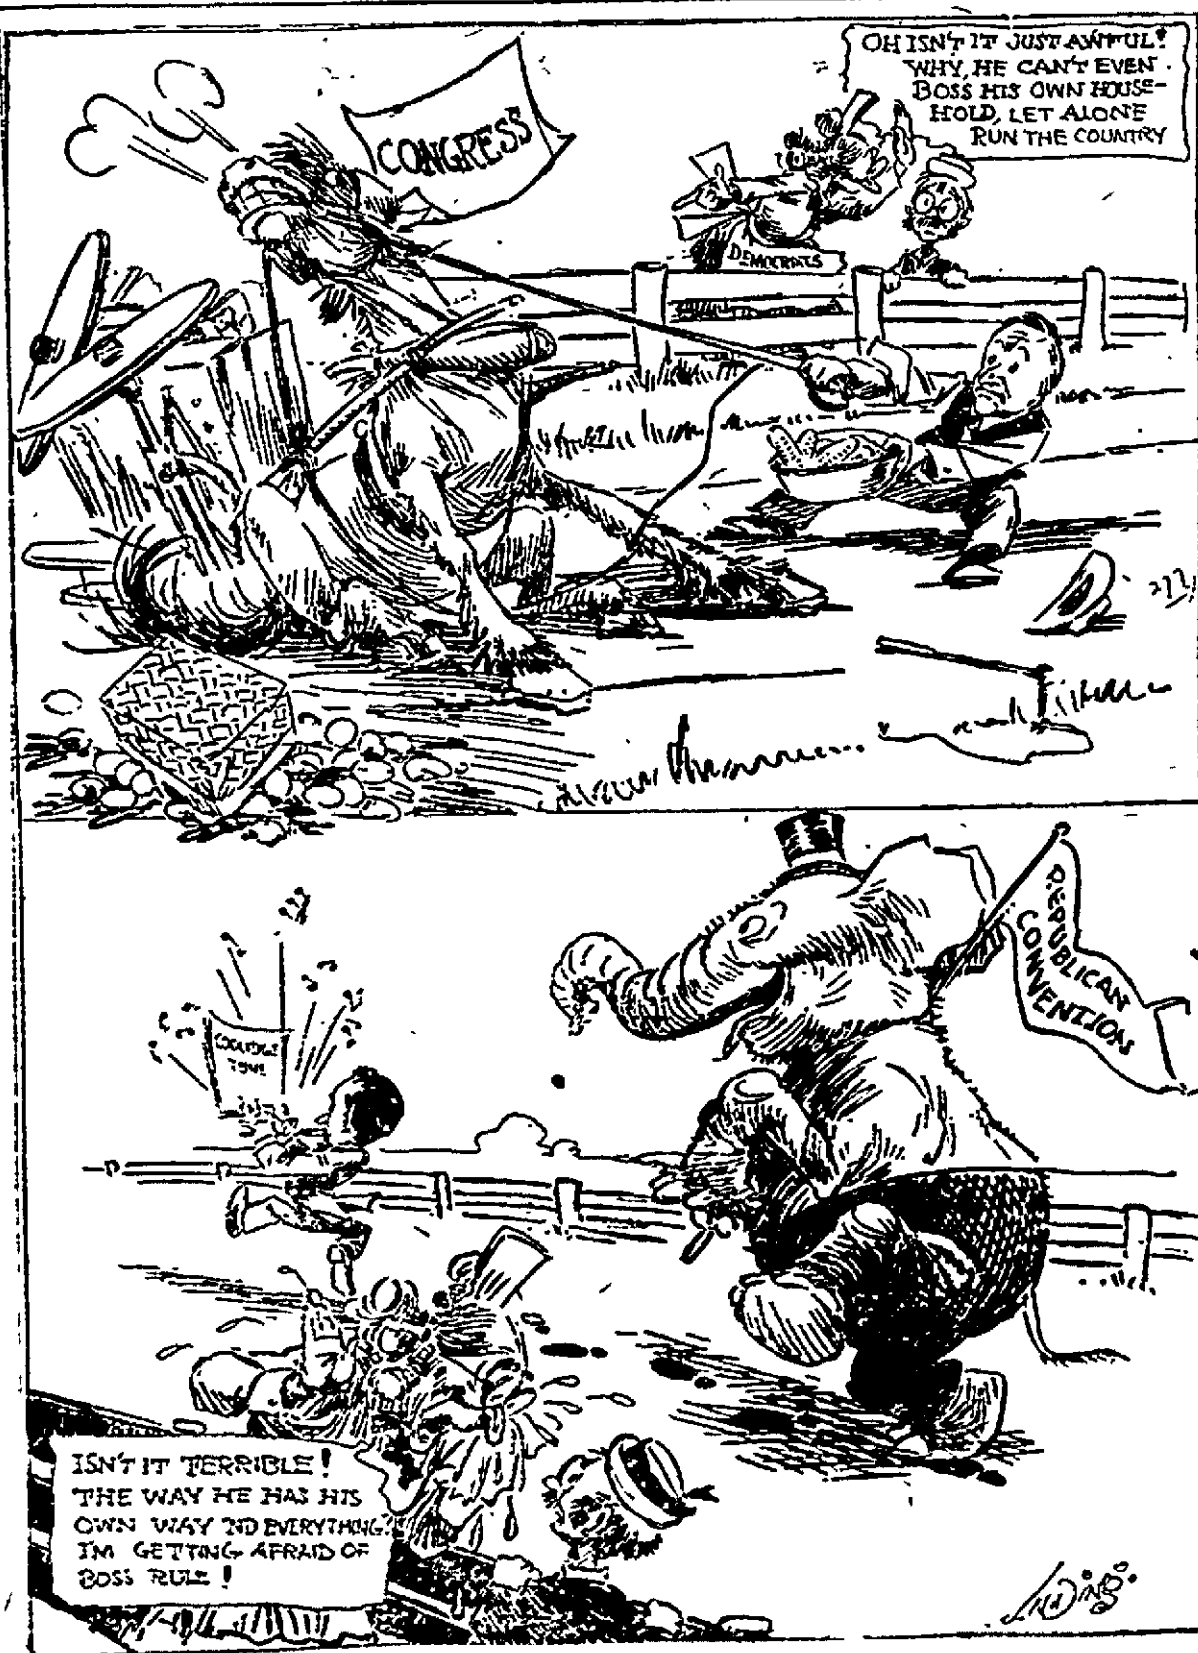

A notable example of city planning was that undertaken in Paris in 1858 under the leadership of the emperor, Napoleon III, and under the strong hand of Baron Haussmann.

Regional planning, on the other hand, is planning for the future in the suburbs and the open country. This is the sort of planning that has been carried on so successfully in Europe.

In England it is recognized that a great city like London cannot be changed very much and the most that can be done is to ameliorate the crowded conditions by creating satellite cities in the surrounding country.

Rural Planning Improves Cities

OF COURSE THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS PLEASING SOME FOLKS

One of Appleton's wealthiest men---- came to us the other day with a very strange request.

His son—16—goes to one of the best schools in the East.

The Father asked us if his boy could work here for two weeks during his vacation at no salary. We were surprised.

He explained—

"I want my son to have a keen sense of Fair Values and Fair Dealing—and I feel that he can get more education along these lines in your store in two weeks than he could gather in a school room in two years."

To this fine compliment we simply add—

New Keep Cool Summer Suits and being unpacked daily—

$15 to $32.50

"TWO FLOORS OF GOOD THINGS TO WEAR"

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

THOMAS HARDY AT EIGHTY-FOUR

About two weeks ago—on June 2 to be exact—Thomas Hardy celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary.

One of the great men of this world in the true sense, not merely in the popular sense, he probably celebrated the event without any ado, as is the habit of truly great men.

But it is perhaps worth while for the rest of us to call attention to the anniversary and to make it the occasion for remembering Hardy's contribution to world literature. I saw the statement some time ago that the present generation regards Hardy as "freely a little old-fashioned."

That is correct then the present generation is missing something old-fashioned that is delightful.

But my personal conviction is that Hardy can never become old-fashioned. His three greatest novels, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "The Return of the Native," and "Jude the Obscure," seem to me as eternal and as universal as any great piece of literature that was ever written. If mankind outgrows the sweetening emotions of which these books are built, civilization and human nature will have to change radically.

There is a great difference between which will be self-sustaining in the true sense that they will be complete, well-rounded cities and not simply dormitories for the neighboring great metropolises.

reading a book like "Tess" and another book that is merely competently written. Many a book that is read, even if it is a worthwhile book and written by a competent craftsman, does not touch the vital parts of the mind and heart, but anyone who can read "Tess" without being moved to such a degree that the experience stands out like a peak above a plain must have developed a soul-consciousness that almost nothing can penetrate.

A book like "Jude the Obscure" is worth reading by a generation that "already regards Hardy as a little old-fashioned" if only for the reason that it is a splendid antidote to the easy, flabby, optimistic, "romanticistic" type of story that millions delight in. All who are induced to read it should be forewarned that it is one of the genuinely disagreeable stories in the language and it is far removed as anything could very well be from what is conventionally known as "pleasant reading."

When the story ran serially in Harper's magazine many years ago, the editors of that publication did not dare to feed it to their readers as written by Hardy but emended it almost beyond recognition. Fortunately however it is possible to read it in book form as a great novelist and a great lover of truth and sincerity wrote it.

STORIES NOT "PLEASANT"

"The Return of the Native" is not a pleasant story either—Hardy never wrote "pleasant stories"—but like the other two it is one of the stories of modern English literature. I do not wish to suggest that these books are great because they are unpleasant; but because they are genuine. Thomas Hardy was and is a convinced pessimist and he was strong enough to stand out against the ideas of popular optimism and maintain himself in his attitude. He did not yield to the spirit of his time and capitulate to it. He was strong enough to express himself and his fundamental pessimism in literature without compromise. In other words, he was a man who stood on his own feet. That calls for greatness and that greatness is reflected in his books. A weak man would have yielded and his books might have attained temporary popularity. Hardy was one of the few who "belong to the ages."

At eighty-four Hardy is said to hold essentially the same philosophy of life that he held in the vigor of his manhood. His pessimism is not at all sourness; it is a conviction, a point of view, something that is worth defending if necessary. It is his point of view had been the opposite he would probably have written great books of an opposite character. Hardy's novels are the complete answer to those who are always insisting on the duty to be optimistic.

And all who have not read him can celebrate his eightieth birthday in a real sense by taking his volumes from the library shelf.

Saddle Club Back From Trip North

Appleton Horseback Riders
Travel 200 Miles, Sep
Reservation

Appleton Saddle and Bridge club returned Friday evening from a 200-mile trip on horseback. The club left Appleton Saturday morning, June 7, and rode to Shawano where members made their headquarters at Judge E. V. Werner's cottage. During the week they explored all the places in and around the Keshena reservation on horseback, covering a distance of 200 miles from the time they left until they returned to Appleton.

Each member of the club wore a red bandanna neckerchief and a white hat. Riding single file through the country, the club made an interesting picture and caused much comment. The Indians on the reservation were especially impressed with the riding party.

Those who were in the party and their horses were Mrs. W. T. Hughes on Topsy Cloud, Mr. Hughes on Midnight, Mrs. Bert Harwood on Glide Along, Mr. Harwood on Billy Bourbon, Miss Helen Reinick on Billy, Miss Blanche Spencer on Ben Peterson, Lester Timm on Sally, Melvin Schuster on Echo, Dr. E. O'Leary on Birchwood, Miss Georgia Laake on Antigo on Browlie and J. Pfeil, their riding master, on Colonel. All the members of the club are riders from the Pfeil academy.

1,500 Attend Freedom Church Picnic Sunday

Rain Sunday morning did not prevent the holding of the annual picnic of St. Peter Lutheran church, Freedom, on the usual scale. There was an attendance of about 1,500 at the picnic. The picnic was held at the grove next to the school house. The house at the grove had disappeared. Meals were served by the church women in the basement of the school house.

The activities opened with a devotional service at the church in the morning, with sermon by the pastor, the Rev. G. A. Dettman. Informal amusement was in progress all day on the grounds.

WEDDINGS

Miss Anna Coppens and Clarence Burby were married at 8 o'clock Monday morning in Holy Name church at Kimberly. The Rev. F. X. Nistler officiated. The Tangle

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES
COTT TO BEATRICE GRIM-
SHAW

MY DEAR BEE:

Your friend, Dick Summers, called me up yesterday and said he wanted me to meet Miss Paula Per. This was the first time I had heard Mr. Summers was accompanying Miss Perler on her "personal appearance" trip at the various theaters.

I immediately asked him about you and he said he thought you were well, but that he had not heard from you for quite a while. What is the matter, Bee, is your engagement broken?

I could not decline to meet Miss Perler, although I told Mrs. Summers that, having lived quite a while in Albany, the young lady in question must have many friends here who could do more for her than I.

Of course he was very flattering and said he wanted her to meet some of the society women in town. He remarked also that Miss Perler knew my husband. He told me that Miss Perler was going to hold a reception at the theater after the afternoon showing of her picture, and he asked me if I would be one of the patronesses.

I expect you know, Bee, that Miss Perler was one of the models at the Acme Advertising Company for quite a while before I was married to Jack, and he paid her quite a little attention at the time. Of course I do not want any one to think I am the least bit jealous of her. I was in a quandary.

Mrs. Summers, however, seemed to make it quite a personal matter that I should meet Miss Perler, and for your sake, Bee, I consented to let my name appear as one of the patronesses, with the stipulation that Ruth Ellington and a number of my friends should agree to doing so also.

Yesterday we all went down to the theater and met the girl. She really is almost a girl, and a very delightful little creature she is. Her manner is decidedly French, although she speaks with very little accent unless she gets excited. I may be mistaken, but it seemed to me that every vestige of color left her face when she met me, and her hands were as cold as ice.

I expect she was very nervous meeting so many people from her own home town. The first words she said to me were: "To me, madame, they say you have a most beautiful son."

"I think so," I answered.

"Oh, may I come to see him?" she asked eagerly. "I love children, and I am afraid that I shall never have any. Attorneys, you know, should never marry."

Then some one in the place spoke up and said: "But you can adopt one or two, mademoiselle!"

"That adoption I do not like," was her quickly spoken explanation. "I want my own child, a child that is mine. May I come and see yours, madame, before I go away?"

There were tears in her eyes as she asked this, but her smile was the loveliest I had ever seen, and I answered "Yes."

Kaukauna RepresentativeLARGE CROWD IS DRAWN TO STOCK
FAIR AT KAUKAUNAOneida Indian Band's Music
Enlivened Day for Visitors

Kaukauna—The streets of Kaukauna resembled a circus day Saturday when Indians from the Oneida reservation furnished street entertainment in connection with the city's third monthly stock fair. People were attracted from the country by means of a thorough system of advertising used by the Kaukauna Stock Fair association. The Oneida Indian band furnished music all day and evening while a group of Indians entertained with their native dances to the beating of tom-toms.

There was a brisk demand for young pigs. The fair committee reported that approximately 2,400 pigs were bought and several hundred more could easily have been disposed of. Many farmers were approached by buyers before they reached the fair grounds on Dodge street. Traffic police were required all day to keep the streets clear and parking space anywhere on the south side was at a premium. It was Oneida Indian day and in addition to the Indians who furnished entertainment, hundreds of others were in town. The advertising committee of the American legion took advantage of the presence of the crowds and distributed advertising relative to the July 4 celebration which takes place in Kaukauna on Independence day.

CHAUTAUQUA WILL BEGIN ON THURSDAY

Program Lasting Five Days Will Be Held on High School
Grounds

New London—A five-day chautauqua program supplied by the Redpath organization, will start here next Thursday under the auspices of a local committee of 20 backers.

The chautauqua numbers will be given on the high school grounds. Season tickets for the program are on sale at Trayser's and Spearbroker's drug stores, the Rev. M. A. Haker, committee secretary has announced.

On the first afternoon the Troubadour made quartet will start the program.

Judge George D. Alden will deliver his timely lecture, "The Needs of the Hour," on the first evening.

On the second afternoon the Chicago Melody trio and the Misses Scott and Denny, five young women, will present a diversified entertainment program.

On the second night Give and Take, a comedy success, will be presented. The Glen Wells company on the third afternoon will present a three-act play, Atoneament.

Frank Preston Johnson, newspaper sociologist, will lecture on the Basis of Liberty, on the same evening.

Bhaskar P. Hivale, native of India, will talk on The New India, on the fourth afternoon's program.

In the evening, Lauriat and company will present a big magic production.

SUCCESS WITH EASE

Success With Ease will be the topic of an inspirational lecture by Geoffrey F. Morgan on the last afternoon program.

That same evening, Gretchen of Holland, a musical production, will be staged by the Montague Light Opera company.

PLAY WILL BE GIVEN AT LEEMAN WEDNESDAY

Leeman—A play will be presented at Leeman Congregational church Wednesday evening, June 13, by the Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church of Shiocton. A supper will be served afterward by the Leeman women.

POISONS SELF;
DIDN'T KNOW IT

Merchant Didn't Know What Was the Matter Until Nausea, Sick Headache and Bad Digestion Were Traced to Their Cause.

A local merchant was surprised to find that his tired, nervous, bilious condition was due to poison from the food he ate. Instead of being digested and eliminated properly, his food was poisoning his whole system, causing sick headaches, nausea, gas on a sour, weak stomach, bad digestion, improper movement of his bowels. Having neglected his liver, that important organ became a menace to his health instead of an aid. Dr. H. S. Thacher's Liver and Blood Srrup, however, made a quick difference in the way he felt, slept, ate and looked. This remarkable remedy acts directly on the liver and keeps the whole system toned up. It is sold with the understanding you will be completely satisfied; otherwise, there will be no cost. Get Thacher's from The Union Pharmacy, Bellig's Drug Store and Volpi's Drug Store in Appleton and Kaukauna Drug Company in Kaukauna.

ENFORCEMENT OF DANCE HALL LAW TO BE EXTENDED

District Attorney Will Investigate Condition at Apple Creek

Enforcement of the county dance hall ordinance in its application to soft drink parlors and roadhouses where music for dancing is furnished by automatic pianos is in prospect, following an interpretation of the statutes given by the state attorney general's department to John A. Lonsdorf, district attorney.

Objection was raised in a recent session of the county board relative to a condition which is said to exist in several soft drink parlors and ice cream parlors. The patrons frequenting these places will get into the middle of the floor and dance to the music furnished by automatic pianos. No license or dance permits were secured by the proprietors from the county supervisors, although the establishments were declared to be in competition with other dance resorts.

According to the legal opinion handed down to Mr. Lonsdorf by Frederick E. Bump, assistant attorney general, "dancing to music of an automatic piano in a road house or soda fountain establishment is a public dance within the meaning of statutes governing dances."

CIVIL WAR VETS AT ANNUAL CONCLAVE

Appleton Well Represented at C. A. R. Convention in Janesville

J. D. Hanchett, commander of the George D. Eggleston post, Grand Army of the Republic, William Priest, Leonard Merkel, Dennis Meldam and E. H. Wilder are attending the fifty-eighth annual encampment of the Wisconsin department of the Grand Army of the Republic and affiliated organizations at Janesville from Monday to Thursday. Between 1,500 and 2,000 persons are expected to attend.

Womans Relief corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, is represented by Mrs. Jane Beech, Mrs. Mary Brown, Mrs. Emily Kooper and Mrs. Emma Loos. Mrs. Laura Pierce, Mrs. Hattie Miller, Miss Ida Ashman and Mrs. Vida Koch are representatives of the J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The annual visit to Camp Treadway, where the Thirtieth Wisconsin trained for the war, and the campfire meeting will be features of the annual encampment. A reunion of the Iron Brigade also will be held during the session.

Principal speakers at the encampment will include Mrs. Belle W. Bliss, national president of Womans Relief Corps and Frank A. Walsh of Milwaukee, senior vice commander of the national Grand Army of the Republic. A. S. Eaton of Superior, department commander will preside at the session.

Pershing At 'Red Arrow' Convention

Members of the 32nd division, known as the Red Arrow division are being urged to dig out their "OD" shirts and overseas chapeaux so that they will appear in the uniform of the day to meet General Pershing, the chief speaker of the fifth annual reunion of the division. It will take place in Milwaukee Sept. 13, 14 and 15, just before the national American Legion convention at St. Paul. Many members of the division from distant places are expected to attend both conventions.

Major General William C. Haan, commander of the division who now lives in Milwaukee made a special trip to Washington to get Pershing to consent to give the memorial address on Sunday, Sept. 14. Milwaukee Red Arrow men are making every effort to plan an interesting program for the "old gang" and their families.

PAPER BUSINESS STILL IS QUIET

The paper industry in Fox river valley has been marking time for several weeks with very little change in the demand. The mills are all in operation, but the majority are running light and orders still are irregular. The number of employees temporarily laid off is comparatively small.

The water in Fox river has subsided somewhat and very little trouble is caused now by backwater. The hauling of coal by water from Green Bay to the papermills has been resumed. Very little pulpwood is being distributed among the mills at present.

SHORT TITLE SONGS ARE MOST IN DEMAND

"Spain," "San," and "Glad" Are Most Popular Phonograph Records

The three records that are headliners on the list of popular records at present are "Spain," "San," and "Glad." These three records are all good and "Spain" is having an exceptional sale in sheet music also. Other popular records include "Hula Hula Dream Girl," "Shine," "East," "Jealous," "It Had to be You" and "From One Till Two."

In the sheet music sales the two songs that were best sellers were "There's Yes in Your Eyes" and "It Had to be You." Other popular numbers include "Red Hot," "Spain," "Jealous," "What'll I Do" and "Hula Hula Dream Girl."

There is such a variety of records and sheet music numbers listed as popular that it is hard to pick a favorite, although the trio, "Spain," "San" and "Glad" are more in demand than others.

Popular records are: Columbia—San, Shine, Dear Blue Eyes, Glad, Mary (Gravure). Edison—Glad, Yes, Dear, East, Roses of Love, Abandonado (Gregor Skolnik and orchestra). Victor—Spain, Jealous, Bringing Home the Bacon, Oriental, Love Dreams, Were, I a Bird (Rachmaninoff).

Brunswick—It Had to be You, Lots of Manna, Spain, Hula Lou, San, Vocalion—You Can Take Me Away from Dixie, Mellow Blues, What'll I Do, You Left Me out in the Rain, From One Till Two.

LAWYER TO STUDY BRITISH LAW SYSTEM

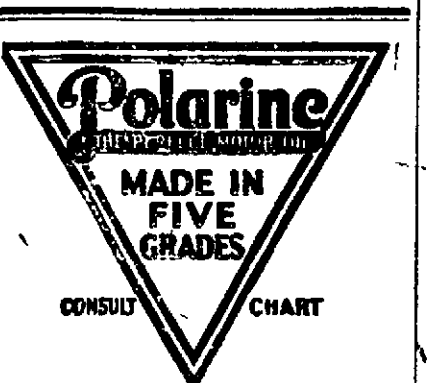

Frank T. Boessel, Milwaukee attorney and chairman of the committee on practice and procedure of the Wisconsin State Bar association, will sail for England in July to attend the annual meeting of the British Bar association and study the English court procedure.

Mr. Boessel will set forth his aims in making the trip as the representative of the state bar association at the annual convention of the association here, June 28. On his return he will prepare a report of the English system and present it at the 1925 meeting of the association.

English court procedure is much speedier than that of the United States, Mr. Boessel says, and it may be that that Wisconsin practice may benefit as a result of the personal study and recommendations made thereon.

SO BIG

By Edna Ferber

By the time Dirk returned from school the rough work of the day was over. His food was always hot, appetizing, plentiful. The house was neat, comfortable. Selina had installed a bathroom—one of the two bathrooms in High Prairie. The neighbourhood was still rocking with the shock of this when it was informed by Jan that Selina and Dirk ate with candles lighted on the supper table. High Prairie slapped its thigh and howled with mirth.

"Cabbages is beautiful," said old Klaas Pool when he heard this. "Cabbages is beautiful I betcha."

Selina during the years of the boy's adolescence, had never urged him to a decision about his future. That, she decided, would come. As the farm prospered and the pressure of necessity lifted, she tried, in various ingenious ways to extract from him some unconscious sign of definite preference for this calling, that profession. As in her leanest days she had bought an occasional book at the cost of much-needed shoes for herself so now she bought many of them with money that another woman would have used for luxury or adornments. Years of personal privation had not killed her love of fine soft silken things, mellow colouring, exquisite workmanship. But they had made it impossible for her to covet these things for herself. She loved to see them, to feel them. Could not wear them. Years later, when she could well afford a French hat in one of the Michigan Avenue millinery shops, she would look at the silk and satin truffles blooming in the windows like gay brilliant flowers in a conservatory—and would buy an untrimmed "shape" for $2.95 in Field's basement. The habit of a lifetime is strong. Just once she made herself buy one of these costly silk-and-feather extravaganzas, going about the purchase deliberately and coldly as a man gets drunk for the experience. The hat had cost twenty-two dollars. She had never worn it.

Until Dirk was sixteen she had been content to let him develop as naturally as possible, and to absorb impressions unconsciously from the traps she so guilelessly left about him. Books on the lives of great men—lives of Lincoln, of Washington, Gladstone, Disraeli, Voltaire. History. Books on painting, charmingly illustrated. Books on architecture, law, medicine, even. She subscribed to two of the best engineering magazines.

There was a shed which he was free to use as a workshop, fitted up with all sorts of tools. He did not use it much, after the first few weeks. He was pleasantly and mildly interested in all these things; held by none of them. Selina had thought of Roelf when they were fitting up the workshop. The Pools had heard from Roelf just once since his flight from the farm. A letter had come from France. In it was a sum of money for Gertrude and Josina—a small sum to take the trouble to send all the way from an outlandish country, the well-to-do Pool household thought. Gertrude was married now to Vander Stij's son Gerrit and lived on a farm out Low Prairie's way. Josina had a crazy idea that she wanted to go into the city as nurse. Roelf's small gift of money had little difference in their day. They never knew the struggle that the impecunious young Paris art student had had to save it out by sea. Selina had never heard from him. But one day years later she had come running to Dirk with an illustrated magazine in her hand.

"Look!" she had cried, and pointed to a picture. He had rarely seen her so excited, so stirred. The illustration showed a photographic reproduction of a piece of sculpture—a woman's figure. It was called The Seine. A figure slumped, snake-like, graceful, revolting, beautiful, terrible. The face alluring, insatiable, generous, treacherous, all at once. It was the Seine that fed the fertile valley land, the Seine that claimed a thousand bloated lifeless figures things; the red-eyed hag of 1789; the dimpling coquette of 1650. Beneath the illustration a line or two—Roelf Pool—Salon—American—future.

"It's Roelf!" Selina had cried. Little Roelf Pool! Tears in her eyes. Dirk had been politely interested. But then he had never known him, really. He had heard his mother speak of him, but—

Selina showed the picture to the Pools, driving over there one evening to surprise them with it. Mrs. Klaas Pool had been horrified at the picture of a nude woman's figure; had cried "Og heden!" in disgust, and had seemed to think that Selina had brought it over in a spirit of spite. Was she going to show it to the rest of High Prairie?

Selina understood High Prairie folk better now, though not altogether, even after almost twenty years of living amongst them. A cold people, yet kindly. Suspicious, yet generous. Distrustful of all change, yet progressing by sheer force of thrift and unceasing labour. Unimaginative for generations, only to produce a Roelf Pool.

She tried now to explain the meaning of the figure Roelf had moulded so masterfully. "You see, it's supposed to represent the Seine. The River Seine that flows through Paris into the countryside beyond. The whole history of Paris—of France—is bound up in the Seine; intertwined with it. Terrible things, and magnificent things. It flows just beneath the Louvre. You can see it from the Bastille. On its largest island stands Notre Dame. The Seine has seen such things, Mrs. Pool—"

"What don't talk!" interrupted the late widow. "A river can't see. Anybody knows that."

At seventeen Dirk and Selina talked of the year to come. He was going to a university. But to what university? And what did he want to study? We'll, hard to say. Kind of a general course, wasn't there? Some languages—little French or something—and political economy, and some literature and maybe history.

"Oh," Selina had said. "Yes, General. Of course, if a person wanted to be an architect, say, I suppose Cornell would be the place. Or Harvard for law. Or Boston Tech for engineering, or—"

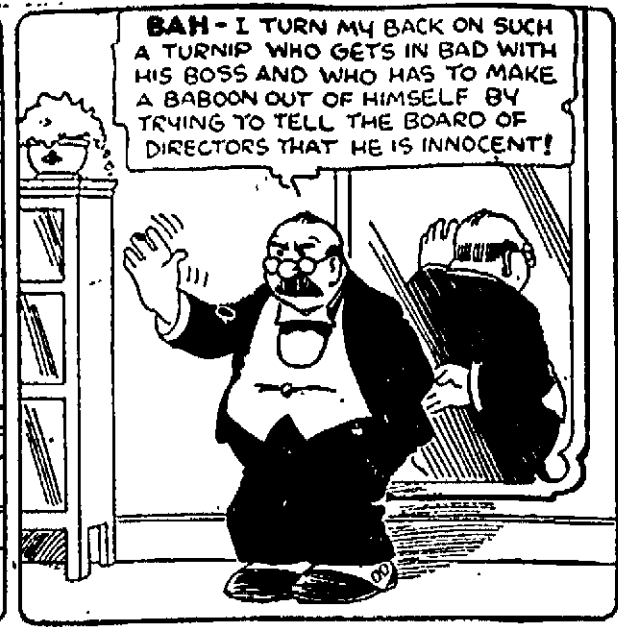

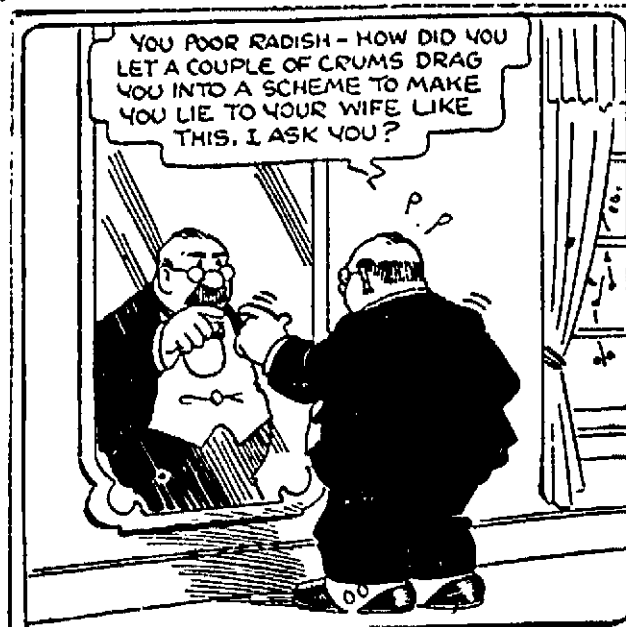

Oh, yeh, if a fellow wanted any of these things. Good idea, though to take a kind of general course until you found out exactly what you wanted to do. Languages and literature and that kind of thing.

Selina was rather delighted than otherwise. That she knew was the way they did it in England. You sent your son to a university not to cram some technical course into him, or to railroad him through a book-knowledge of some profession. You sent him in that he might develop in an atmosphere of books, of learning; spending relaxed hours in the companionship of men who taught for the love of teaching; whose informal talks before a study fire were more richly valuable than whole courses of classroom lectures. She had read of these things in English novels, Oxford, Cambridge, Don, Jay, Punting, Prints, Moulton windows. Books. Discussion. Literary clubs.

ELECTRIC CITY CLUB HUMBLES APPLETON, 4 TO 1

Kaukauna Breaks Into Win Column At Expense Of Papermakers Sunday

Small Crowds Sees Stumpfites Rally in Eighth and Ninth and Take Mediocre Game from Home Team.

Kaukauna Sunday afternoon evened its score with the Papermakers when Kromer's Homeplayers came out on top, 4 to 1, in a mediocre display of baseball at Brandt park here. As usual, Stack outpitched his rival, but lacking efficient support, especially at bat, his team again tasted defeat. Neither team scored up to the sixth and both together had chalked up but four hits to that stanza. In the second half of the sixth, a twobagger by Marty Lamers started the Papermakers off in what promised to be a slaughter, but ended with but a single run. Kaukauna opened up in the eighth when three singles, a sacrifice and a stolen base netted them two tallies and piled up more in the ninth. Appleton attempted a rally in the final stanza, but a popup fly coupled with a fatal oversight by Red Smith who failed to touch third before he started for the plate put end to the inning and to the Papermakers' last hope of turning defeat into victory.

CROWD IS SMALL. The crowd was small as the diamond in poor shape and the recent rain. Evidently the Papermakers were overconfident and expected an easy victory. However, Kromer had added a pair of Milwaukee players—Kresse in leftfield and Korthals at first—to his lineup, and early in the third inning T. D. Lamers was walked when Kresse stole second, and had to be taken out of the contest. Marty was sent to take the place of Bergerino to second. Bergerino went to short and Red Smith, just back from Notre Dame university, replaced M. Lamers at third.

Appleton was hitting very poorly, and although Pocaan was wild and hit often, the fielders caught the ball more often than not.

APPLETON SCORES IN SIXTH. The first six innings were uneventful. Kaukauna came to Stack for a hit in the first, second and fifth, while the Papermakers connected with but one of Pocaan's wild deliveries in that time. The Kaukauna twirler gave five men a walk to first however, but no one was hitting and Appleton failed to score. In the second stanza A. Weisgerber got a life, and was sent to second when Pocaan walked. Marty Lamers immediately after him. Then E. Weisgerber poked a high foul which Stumpf caught. Babiness struck out, and Zink corralled Stack's high fly center field.

An error hit and a sacrifice took Briemaler as far as third in the next stanza, but again the next two men up failed to come across, and Kaukauna was out of danger. Several times Pocaan pitched himself into bad holes, but despite his wildness at intervals throughout the game, the Papermakers couldn't reach him until the sixth.

Then Marty Lamers started off with a twobagger. E. Weisgerber struck out and Babiness walked. Stack followed with a slow fly centerfield which forced Marty Lamers out at third, and Briemaler pounded a single out to rightfield which brought Babiness across the plate. Bergerino went down by the strikeout route with Stack on third and Briemaler on second.

Meanwhile not one Kaukauna man had got beyond second, and despite the failure of the Papermakers to hit, it still looked as though they would win easily.

EIGHTH TURNS TIDE. Then came the fatal eighth. E. Sager and Melchior each singled and Kresse followed with a sacrifice. Zink went down before Stack's twisters, but Eddie Stumpf poked a safety to centerfield which ending E. Sager missed by a hair, sending B. Sager to first. Melchior home and putting Kaukauna in the lead. Stumpf stole second while Stack was striking Pocaan out but died there when Pocaan failed to connect.

The ninth inning was much the same. A walk, a wild pitch a single and an error sent E. Sager home for a run, and his brother, E. Sager scored a hit, a stolen base and a two bagger. The Papermakers still had one chance and it looked as though they might pull out of the hole even then. Amy Weisgerber started off with a hot grounder through short after Red Smith had singled and Sylvester had popped one into Kresse's hands. Marty Lamers poked a hot grounder to Melchior at third who attempted to beat Amy to second with his throw. B. Sager fumbled the ball and both Amy and Marty were safe, with the bases full and one man down. Then E. Weisgerber sent a high one out to Kresse who caught it. Red Smith ran for home without first touching his base and was called out, spoiling the rally.

The Electric City youngsters played a good game compared to the Papermakers who were very off, and deserve credit for fighting every minute. The breaks were with them, but if the Appleton club had been playing half as good as usual, the result might have been vastly different.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Jack Blott, University of Michigan catcher, announced he would report to the Cincinnati Nationals on June 22.

Cleveland—Phyladina sold Earl Combs, Yankee outfielder, was injured so seriously when he slid home Sunday, he might have to be out of the game all season.

Jail Birds 13, Post Crescents 9.
Appleton 13, M. C. A. Boys baseball league Saturday got away to a flying start, playing a class of ball worthy of a regular grown up loop. Each of the three games offered plenty of excitement, but the feature of the contest was staged on the Fourth ward grounds when the Cardinals to a 7 to 2 drubbing. Despite the handicap of two missing players, the Cards put up an excellent game and kept the winners going from start to finish.

PARTON STAYS GAME
Harry Parton, president of the league, pitched the first ball in the Pike Peak-T. N. T. contest in Erb park. The game was expected to be a pitchers' battle, but Christian, the T. N. T. hurler, weakened in the sixth, and a storm of hits gave the Pike Peaks the victory, 9 to 1.

The Post-Crescents came out second best in a slugfest with the Jail Birds in Jones park, which the latter won, 13 to 9. Heavy hitting and erratic fielding were the main features of this contest. The newbies lack practice, but with a bit of experience will give the rest of the clubs a hard run.

A league meeting will be held Monday night in the T. M. C. A. to discuss the first game, consider applications of other teams which wish to enter the loop, and possible changes in the lineups. The next series will be played on Wednesday.

Sunday was disastrous for the Appleton State League club. "Stormy" Kromer slipped a couple of new Milwaukee players into his outfit in response to the demands of the other league officials, and his new combination humbled the Papermakers who were entirely off color.

Giants Regain League Lead By Beating Reds, 4 To 1, While Cubs Rest

Boston Loses Chance to Tie Yankees at Head of American Loop When Tygers Cop, 10 to 4.

The New York Giants took advantage of the Chicago Cubs Sunday while they rested in Philadelphia and regained the league leadership. The Giants found a former world's series enemy, Carl Mays, now tossing for the Cincinnati Reds, easy and drove him from the mound in the sixth inning, taking a 4 to 1 victory. It gave the champions first place by one half game.

The Boston Red Sox lost a chance to tie the Yankees at the head of American league parade by falling before Ty Cobb's Tigers, 10 to 4, as the Yanks were losing, 3 to 10, to the Cleveland Indians. The Sox lost an outfielder when Combs slid home and dislocated his right ankle. Myatt, Cleveland catcher, hit a homer with two on in the seventh.

Detroit won with an avalanche of hits, 21 of them. Each Tiger hit safely at least once, and Manager Cobb got five out of six. However, 31 hits, Boston retelling 10, to the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 4, although nine doubles were recorded, although nine doubles were recorded.

FIVE HOMERS POLED
The Browns-Macks set to was even more productive of doubles, ten to batters and five homers keeping the result in doubt until the tenth inning when Sile's single scored the winning run for a 3 to 8 victory. Ken Williams drove out his eleventh homer, and Van Gilder, Welch, Hauer and "Baby Doll" Jacobson also manufactured four-ply swats.

Chicago's White Sox leaped into fourth place by overcoming Washington, 6 to 4. The Sox out-clowned Nick Altrock in the first inning, but settled down and played excellent baseball.

Dutch Reuther held St. Louis to four hits and Brooklyn won, 4 to 3. Minnesota battled 14 innings before succumbing to Indianapolis, 10 to 9. Jaxson Klitz tied up the game in the ninth when he hit a homer with the bases loaded.

Toledo took a double header from Milwaukee, 5 to 3 and 4 to 2, the first contest being played through a drizzle of rain and the second being halted 15 minutes by a downpour.

In the other two cities double-headers were split, Columbus losing to Kansas City, 2 to 3, and winning 5 to 4, and Louisville defeating Southern hospitality by losing to St. Paul 9 to 4, but mauling the Saints 4 to 2, in the second game.

The second Saints Colonels contest was called in the eighth because of darkness.

route and clouded the apple four times, although only one of the blows was a safety.

Ted Lamers played in hard luck once more. While trying to catch Kresse at second which he was trying to steal, Lamers and Bergerino got into each others' way while Babiness was making the peg over the heads of the ump and pitcher, and Ted had to leave the game with a bad cut on his shin. Incidentally, Kresse was safe.

Somebody fell down on the job in the ninth stanza. Red Smith was on third when E. Weisgerber poked a high fly to leftfield which found a berth in the fielder's mitt. Red had taken a lead and ran for home before

GREEN BAY BOWS TO CHAIRS, 3 TO 2

Buster Braun Wins Own Game With Timely Hit in Last Half of Eleventh

Sheboygan—With a timely hit in the last half of the eleventh inning of Sunday's State league game here Buster Braun won his own game by scoring Wangemann from third base with the deciding score. Wangemann had doubled to right, and took third on a wild pitch. The features of the game were Wangemann's hitting and a triple play by Green Bay which spoiled a Sheboygan rally in the tenth inning. With Wilke and Heilberger on first and second, Dillman lined a fast one to Steel that the pitcher appeared with his gloved hand, throwing to Bateman at first, doubling Heilberger. Wilke then being caught off second, Bateman to Schultz. The Bays imported Steel, of the Simmons team of the Midwest league to do the pitching, and Bill Liebi's crew got to him for nine safe blows, three of which were made by Wangemann. The score:

HOW THEY STAND	W	L	Pct.
Sheboygan	5	1	.833
Neenah-Menasha	4	2	.667
Oshkosh	4	3	.571
Appleton	3	3	.500
Fond du Lac	2	3	.400
Green Bay	2	4	.333
Kaukauna	1	5	.167

SUNDAY'S RESULTS
Kaukauna 4, Appleton 1.
Oshkosh 3, Menasha 2.
Sheboygan 3, Green Bay 2.

Kaukauna and Oshkosh Sunday upset the dope bucket completely and entirely in the Wisconsin State league, and Sheboygan holds undisputed sway after its victory over the Baymen, 3 to 2. Oshkosh climbed to third place by upsetting the Pails, who now are second, and Kaukauna, though still in the cellar, has got a start.

"Bull" Durham won his game chiefly by his own efforts when the cause seemed entirely hopeless with the Pails in the lead, 2 to 0, in the ninth. Durham slugged out a homer with two men on and the roaring of the home fans nearly swept the stands away.

Sheboygan succeeded in holding Green Bay, but had a hard time doing it, while the Papermakers dropped a poor game to the rebuilt Kaukauna Homeplayers.

The ball had landed. He beat the throw but was out on the technical point, and thus spoiled the last chance the Papermakers had of winning. An efficient coach at third might have prevented this.

A general shakeup in the Appleton club would not be amiss. For the past two weeks the players have slumped up, dropping games to Oshkosh and now to Kaukauna after defeating the league-leading Pails the week before. The fault most decidedly is not with the battery. Stack and Babiness could defeat any team in the loop with proper support. In both of the last two contests Stack has pulled down 13 hostile batters and helped his own game with a hit.

RIVERVIEWS BEAT FOX RIVER COUNTRY CLUB GOLFERS HERE

Semi-Finals in June Handicap Will Be Played Off This Week

Riverview Country club Saturday scored its first victory of the season over the Fox River Country club of Green Bay, when the latter went down to defeat, 20 to 10, in the opening tournament here.

There were 14 men on each side, although a larger number comprised the Green Bay delegation. The course was in fine condition, and although the invaders put up a good game, the Riverview golfers easily outplayed them.

N. E. Brokaw, L. Hallock, D. W. Bergstrom, Jr., and R. A. Peterson survive in the June handicap cup tournament, and must play off the semi-finals this week.

N. E. Brokaw Saturday defeated Jack Stevens, one up. L. Hallock won by default from Harry Price, and R. A. Peterson defeated Dr. Rector, 4 up and 3 to go.

Brokaw and Hallock are paired in the semi-finals, in which D. W. Bergstrom will meet R. A. Peterson.
